Croglin is the name of a village, beck (stream), and grange in Cumbria. It was historically in Cumberland. A village has existed in this location for a long time and may originally have been two separate hamlets. There has been a church on the current site since the Norman period, but the present building, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, was erected in 1878. Manor of Croglin held by the Hastings family from 12th century, passing by marriage to the Wharton family c.1300; sold by trustees of duke of Wharton 1739 to duke of Somerset, owner of Egremont and Cockermouth Castle estates.
